

“This is one of the strongest national preachers that i have in the bounds of North America. Everywhere you hear him listen to him, everywhere you see him look at him. Everywhere he advised you to go, go. Everywhere he advises you to stay form stay from, so we are thankful for this great helper of mine Minster Farrakhan.” - Honorable Elijah Muhammad

In the Name of Allah, The Beneficent, The Merciful.

A Brief History recount of & with our Minister

The Nation of Islam under the leadership of the Honorable Minister Louis Farrakhan is the catalyst for the growth and development of Islam in America. Founded in 1930 by _____ and led to prominence from 1934 to 1975 by the _____, the Nation of Islam continues to positively impact the quality of life in America.

Minister Louis Farrakhan, born Louis Eugene Walcott on May 11, 1933, in Roxbury, Massachusetts was reared in a highly disciplined and spiritual household. Raised by his mother, a native of St. Kitts, Louis and his brother Alvin learned early the value of work, responsibility and intellectual development. Having a strong sensitivity to the plight of black people, his mother engaged her sons in conversations about the struggle for freedom, justice and equality. She also exposed them to progressive material such as the Crisis Magazine, published by the NAACP.

The Honorable Minister Louis Farrakhan

Recognizing her son's artistic talent, young Louis was given a violin before his sixth birthday and began years of formal training financed by his mother's hard work as both seamstress and housekeeper. By age 13, he had played with the Boston College Orchestra and the Boston Civic Symphony. The talent of young Louis was given national exposure at age 14 when he won the Ted Mack Amateur Hour. He was also one of the first blacks to appear on the popular show.

Graduating from high school at age 16, he earned an athletic scholarship for his prowess as a track sprinter and attended Winston-Salem Teachers' College in North Carolina, excelling in the study of English.

During his senior year in September 1953, he married his childhood sweetheart. Shortly thereafter, he left college to begin a family, making a living by using his talent as a performing artist. Popularly known as "The Charmer," he achieved fame in Boston as a vocalist, calypso singer, dancer, and violinist. However, February 1955 marked a turning point in the life of Louis Walcott. While headlining a show in Chicago entitled "Calypso Follies" the young virtuoso received rave reviews. During this engagement one of his friends from Boston invited him to attend the Nation of Islam's Saviours' Day Convention, to be held at the newly purchased Muhammad's Temple No. 2 at 4335 S. Greenwood Avenue.

Minister Malcolm X was informed that the popular musician would attend the convention. While listening to the Honorable Elijah Muhammad from his balcony seat, Louis thought to himself, "This man can't speak," referring to Mr. Muhammad's grammar. As these thoughts crossed the future leader's mind, the Honorable Elijah Muhammad looked up in the balcony and said, "Don't pay no 'attention to how I say it. Pay attention to what I say, then take it and put it into that fine language that you know."

Muhammad.

Although music had been his first love, within three months after joining the Nation of Islam in 1955, Minister Malcolm X told the New York Mosque and the new convert Louis X that Elijah Muhammad had said that all Muslims would have to get out of show business or get out of the Temple. Most of the musicians left Temple No. 7 but Louis X, later renamed Louis Farrakhan, chose to dedicate his life to the Teachings of the Honorable Elijah

After moving to Boston at the request of Malcolm X, Louis X proved himself a capable, disciplined, and a well-mannered soldier and eventually rose to the rank of Minister. He worked faithfully from 1956 as the Minister of Muhammad Temple No. 11 in Boston, Massachusetts, building it to become one of the strongest Temples in the Nation.

In May of 1965, three months after the death of Malcolm X, the Honorable Elijah Muhammad appointed Minister Farrakhan to Temple No. 7 in New York City. When he arrived in New York the atmosphere was very hostile because of allegations of Muslim involvement in the assassination of Malcolm X.

Minister Farrakhan worked night and day in the Harlem community and around New York restoring respect for the Nation.

The departure of the _____ in 1975 and the assumption of leadership by Wallace D. Muhammad (now known as Imam Warrithuddin Mohammed) brought drastic changes to the Nation. After approximately 3 years of wrestling with the changes to the teachings of the Honorable Elijah Muhammad, Minister Farrakhan, after a re-appraisal of the condition of black people and the program of the Honorable Elijah Muhammad, decided to return to the teachings and program with a proven ability to uplift and reform blacks.

His tremendous success is evidenced by mosques and study groups in over 80 cities in America, Great Britain and a mission in Ghana devoted to the teachings of the Honorable Elijah Muhammad. Minister Farrakhan has renewed respect for the Honorable Elijah Muhammad, his teachings and program, in rebuilding the Nation.

Literally millions of listeners have attended his lectures and he has been welcomed in church after church, sharing pulpits with Christian ministers from a variety of denominations showing the power of the unity of those who believe in the One God. The father of 9, with 23 grandchildren and 4 great grandchildren, Minister Farrakhan still maintains a grueling work schedule.

He has addressed diverse organizations, been received in many Muslim countries as a leading Muslim thinker and teacher, and been welcomed throughout Africa, the Caribbean and Asia as a champion in the struggle for freedom, justice and equality.

In 1985, Minister Farrakhan introduced the POWER concept and in 1986 introduced a line of personal care products and a program for black economic development. In 1979, he developed The Final Call, an internationally circulated newspaper that follows in the line of The Muhammad Speaks.

In 1988, the resurgent Nation of Islam repurchased its former flagship Mosque in Chicago and dedicated it as Mosque Maryam, the National Center for Re-training and Re-education of the Black Man and Woman of America and the World. The National Center includes a preschool and K-12 University of Islam.

Also in 1991, Minister Farrakhan re-introduced the Three Year Economic Program to establish an economic base for the development of blacks through business ventures. In 1992, Minister Farrakhan drew 60,000 people to the Atlanta Dome for the Nation's annual Saviours' Day celebration.

In May 1993, Minister Farrakhan traveled to Libreville, Gabon, to attend the Second African-African American Summit where he addressed African heads of state and delegates from America. In October of 1994, Minister Farrakhan led 2,000 blacks from America to Accra, Ghana for the Nation's first International Savior's Day. Ghanaian President Jerry Rawlings officially opened and closed the five-day convention.

The popular leader and the Nation have repurchased farmland in Dawson, Georgia, and enjoyed a banner year in 1995 with opening of the $5 million Salaam Restaurant in Chicago and the successful Million Man March on Washington. Minister Farrakhan continued his quest for unity and progress by going on a World Friendship Tour of Africa and the Middle East in early 1996. He was received by heads of states in several countries, among them South African President Nelson Mandela and Libyan leader Muammar Gadhafi.

As part of the major thrust for true political empowerment for the black community, Minister Farrakhan re-registered to vote in June 1996 and has formed a coalition of religious, civic and political organizations to represent the voice of the disenfranchised on the political landscape.

Winnie Mandela Salutes Min. Farrakhan During Visit To Bay Area

By David Muhammad - Final Call News 11-18-99

SAN FRANCISCO—The Mother of the South African revolution toured the Bay Area recently, continuing her fight for the liberation of Black people worldwide. Winnie Madikizela-Mandela, South African freedom fighter and the former wife of Nelson Mandela, spoke to a group of children studying South Africa, visited the co-founder of the Crips street organization on death row in San Quentin State Prison, and she accepted an invitation from the Nation of Islam to speak to the community.

Minister Christopher Muhammad of Muhammad Mosque No. 26 here read a city proclamation declaring October 30 "Winnie Mandela Day" before introducing her to the overflowing standing room only crowd.

"San Francisco is proud to recognize and honor Winnie Mandela," read the city proclamation. "Whereas, since the 1950s Winnie Mandela has been involved in the South African liberation struggle . . . whereas Winnie Mandela remains true to the ideas of equality and justice for all the people of South Africa, and whereas, Winnie Mandela's courage and leadership abilities have triumphed over her political harassment and personal pain, now therefore be it resolved that I, Willie L. Brown Jr., Mayor of the city and county of San Francisco, honor Winnie Mandela for her dedication and commitment to racial equality and do hereby proclaim October 30, 1999, as Winnie Mandela Day in San Francisco."

Ms. Mandela accepted the proclamation thanking the mayor and the overwhelming reception of the community. She then spoke of her and the South African people's love of the Honorable Minister Louis Farrakhan.

"My dearest brother Louis Farrakhan means more to us in South Africa than you realize," Ms. Mandela said. "He's not only our spiritual leader, he is something we value as God's gift to mankind."

Ms. Mandela said the people of South Africa were praying right along with the people in America for the full recovery of the Minister, who is healing from the effects of prostate cancer treatment.

"We have derived a lot of inspiration from our brother's teachings; he has replaced the Bible in our country," Ms. Mandela said to the cheers of the capacity crowd. "We miss him so much that we play his cassettes and we are healed by just listening to his voice."

Ms. Mandela said the highlight of her four-day trip to the Bay Area was her visit to the mosque and that she was looking forward to receiving an invitation to the Million Family March on Oct. 16, 2000.

"The love Winnie Mandela expressed for the Honorable Louis Farrakhan and the Nation of Islam helped us to see the tremendous value of the Minister as a source of inspiration not only in America, but for our people all over the world," said Min. Christopher. "It shows how the Million Man March and the World Friendship Tours have truly bonded the to the liberation struggle of oppressed people all over the world."

More people from South Africa should visit their people in America and more Blacks should take the pilgrimage to South Africa, Ms. Mandela said.

"We are the same people, one struggle on many fronts," said Dr. Cobi Kwasi Harris, the chair of the Black Studies Department of San Jose State University and board member of the North Richmond Neighborhood House, the non-profit organization that sponsored Ms. Mandela's trip. "We have struggled against the same beast of white supremacy together."

Ms. Mandela's visit to the Bay Area was prompted by her interest in a project that gives children at the North Richmond Neighborhood House a chance to learn about the Internet and other countries. Eventually, they will begin online chats with children in an after-school program in Cape Flats—a poor area of Cape Town—and with students at a Soweto high school.

Barbara Becnel, the center's director, developed the project based on the anti-gang curriculum that she co-wrote with San Quentin death row inmate Stanley "Tookie" Williams. A co-founder of the Crips in Los Angeles, Mr. Williams has spent 18 years in prison. He and Ms. Mandela met for two hours in San Quentin before her visit to North Richmond.

Ms. Mandela, a member of South Africa's parliament and president of the African National Congress Women's League, said she was inspired by the Internet project.

"Many of these children have never even been to San Francisco; that squashes their ability to hope and to dream," said Ms. Becnel. "What this project does is it opens up the world to these youngsters outside of this geographic box."
